Peggy McGee

Would you please do me the favor of somehow extending the contents of this communication to some of the people listed below. I am somewhat overwhelmed and need help. I thank you so very much.

As part of my Honor Flight visit to the WWII Memorial and other sights in Washinton DC, I was favored with a huge stack of thank you cards and letters from friends, acquaintances and other kind and grateful people expressing their appreciation for my service in the military. This included many school children, which pleased me very much. Most of the knowledge they might otherwise have of WWII would be from lessons in history. Their participation involving personal contact with veterans of WWII gives them a closer connection between the history of WWII and the freedoms they have today, freedoms they might otherwise take for granted.

I can't possibly personally thank everyone who sent me a card or letter. For most of them I have no address, or even a name, but listed below are a few identified with Green Valley. For any with whom you are familiar, please thank them for me.
